Beck Center for the Arts
Position (Title): Music Instructor - Cello
Reports to: Assistant Director of Education
General Description: Part-time, hourly, non-exempt

Position Summary: Beck Center’s Music Education program seeks dynamic teaching artists to instruct students in private cello lessons. The ideal candidate is an experienced performer and educator with a proven ability to work with children as well as adults. Suzuki teacher training is preferred, but not required. Beck Center is currently offering lessons online-only, and will be open for string instruction in-person upon reopening, depending on teacher availability.

Responsibilities:
This position is responsible for maintaining an active and growing studio by instructing students in weekly private lessons and preparing students for Student Showcase recitals. Instructors are expected to teach consistently during the academic year with an optional summer semester. Beck Center’s academic calendar includes: Fall (Sept-Dec), Winter/Spring (January 11-May 29), and Summer (June 14-August 28). Instructors provide a high standard of music instruction that meets the needs of each individual student, tracking their short-term and long-term goals toward sustained growth. Instructors communicate with students, parents, and staff to facilitate lessons and foster student retention. Instructors are responsible for recording attendance and enrollment accurately and promptly in the faculty time and attendance system.

Qualifications
We seek an individual with a BA or MA in music performance and/or education with experience teaching privately and/or in a classroom setting and experience performing in a professional setting. Must be an articulate customer service oriented individual who communicates well with students, families, and colleagues. The candidate should have excellent organizational skills and be prepared to lead weekly lessons that are educational with developmentally and age appropriate content. Comfortable using Zoom or other video-conferencing software to conduct online lessons.

A competitive hourly rate will be discussed with each potential candidate. Hiring is contingent upon passing a background check.
